

Notification No.: 12062026

Version: 1.0 Page: 1

Release Date: 12th of June 2026

Notification Status: Advisory Mandatory Announcement

Classification: Software Hardware Policy/Procedure

Description: UBA Pro RC200 Support

Hardware: base frame UBA 10 RC

Territory: All

Conditions:

Important Notice:

Starting with firmware version 2.51-14, base frames from the discontinued UBA-10 RC product family will no longer be compatible with the UBA Pro product family and will no longer receive firmware updates or security-related enhancements.

Background:

The UBA-10 RC platform has reached end-of-support status and will no longer be considered for further development or integration into newer product architectures such as UBA Pro. Previously, it was technically possible to operate UBA Pro transport heads on UBA-10 RC base frames. Starting with firmware version 2.51-14, this configuration will be officially discontinued and will no longer be supported.

Firmware and Security Limitations:

- No Future Firmware Updates

Future firmware releases will not be available for systems using a UBA-10 RC base frame in combination with UBA Pro components.

- Security Risk

As a result, affected systems will no longer receive security-related updates or enhancements, potentially increasing their vulnerability over time.

Solution / Corrective Action:

UBA Pro operation is supported only on approved UBA Pro platforms. UBA-10 RC base frames must not be used for upgrade or retrofit applications.

Customer Impact / Action Required:

Do not upgrade UBA-10 RC systems to UBA Pro. Review existing installations to identify unsupported configurations, and plan migration to fully supported UBA Pro systems where applicable.

Additional Information:

JCM will introduce firmware-based protection mechanisms to enforce supported system configurations and prevent unauthorized or unsupported usage scenarios.

Notes: The content of this announcement is to accurately reflect information available at the time of this writing. This information can change or be modified at any time with no formal notification requirements. Please contact your local JCM Sales Representative for additional information.